new donation goal

Imara.Education is an AI-supported education platform for African children. It supports students, teachers and schools, with prepared learning content and question activities that work without internet.

For the past year, I have worked on Imara and personally contributed USD 50,000 towards the team and project travel. I am inviting people who believe in this work to help fund its next phase.

What your support will help achieve

Our goal is to raise USD 150,000 in donations for travel across Africa to present Imara to heads of state, education ministries and potential partners, and to build the relationships and support needed for pilot rollout.

Next steps: Lukenya University will conduct a case study. Liberia is the planned first country pilot. The longer-term vision includes schools and learning stations for children with no access to school.
